Using Splints to help with TMD

What are temporomandibular joint disorders (TMD)?

Do you regularly experience any of the following symptoms:

- Headaches
- Ringling in the ears
- Neck and shoulder pain
- Pain behind the eyes
- Dull aching face pain
- Limited ability to open the mouth

You could be suffering from TMD. Many people experience these same problems, but after seeing several doctors are still unable to diagnose their problem. They don't realize where the source of their pain is. The temporomandibular joint is located in the front of each ear and allows you to move your jaw, open and close your mouth, chew you food, and swallow. TMDs are problems associated with pain in this joint due to stress, clenching your jaw, or a bad bite. Many people are helped by simply talking to the dentist.

What can we do to help?

The dentist can help diagnose your particular TMD problem and help you find a solution to meet your specific needs. Splints or mouth guards can be helpful in relieving the pain by keep your jaw in a more relaxed position, inhibit clenching, and other functions tailored to the need of the individual's TMD. If you have several of the symptoms listed above talk to us about possible solutions.
